LITTLE THEATRE ANNOUNCES SWITCH IN PLAY SCHEDULE

The Bay St. Louis Little Theatre announces a switch in play schedule. "Green Stocking" scheduled for presentation in late July has been re-set for early October and "The Male Animal" has been moved up for presentation in mid-August. "Green Stocking", a character study, calls for a precise type-casting and rehearsals have been ordered by conflicting engagements among cast members. Other unforeseen obstacles turned up Miss Rachael Norgess, who is directing, decided, with the approval of the Board, to postpone the play until early fall, when rehearsals can be had uninterrupted with a full cast. "The Male Animal", a three act comedy, by James Thurber and Elliott Nugent, was presented by the Little Theatre in May of 1946 and has been considered by the Board for a re-play for several years. The requests for repeating this highly enjoyable comedy have been numerous. The play will be directed by Teddy Stechman, Jr., assisted by Charles Carter, Sr., Mrs. Frank Kiefer, who directed the 1946 production for the Little Theatre, will be production supervisor. Mrs. Clemmie Drew, an employee at Lerner's in Gulfport, is on two weeks vacation. She left Tuesday for New Orleans where she will visit for several days with her sons and families, Mr. and Mrs. Guy Drew and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Drew.

Pearl River is again muddy; will take a little time to clear up.

Plenty of hard crabs are being caught most everywhere. The best catches have been made along the railroad bridge. Big ones were caught on hook and line in Heron Bay by a party of fishermen while fishing for specks.

Kitchen

The weather has been excellent until the past couple of days when the rains came. Fishing was good with both fresh and salt water fish being caught.

Good catches of green trout and perch were reported up Jordan River. Speckles are still being caught mostly at Half Moon, mouth of Pearl River, Bayou Mo-land, Three Oaks and Heron Bay.

Soft crabbing has been on the waning side, but still a few are being caught. Seems like the tides have been too low, too soon at night.

Luke Elliott and son Chip of Baton Rouge, Joe Glover and Michael Haggerty of New Orleans are spending the week at the Bay, guests of the Dec Elliotts. Joe and Luke made arrangements to take their vacations at the same time. Fishing, crabbing, and golfing are taking up all of their time. Good catches of specks and fresh water fish have been made each day, rain or shine.

Jack Garriga and Bobby Fayard have been catching some nice green trout. They were after them Sunday again.

Guy Gilbert is painting his speed hull right now. Guy enjoys his boat and fishing.

Lucien Favre's Camp on Jordan River was a busy place over the Fourth weekend. He is located above Edward's Bayou and has skiffs for rent, live bait, worms and minnows for sale. Drive out Washington Street all the way after passing the Highway. Lucien and his son make a specialty of serving and being courteous to their customers. Fishermen and picnickers have a "Dream Come True" at this spot.

Spending the day Thursday at Favre's Camp were Mr. and Mrs. Joe Glover and children, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Elliott and son Chipper, Mr. and Mrs. Dec Elliott and Michael Haggerty. Fishing, camping, barbecuing was the order of the day.

Nino Enterante of New Orleans spent the weekend at the Bay with his grandparents. Nino got his share of fish while here.

Let's forget about being too old! See where Mack Curdy Billiard has returned to the stage at the age of 85 to take the lead in a play to open in September. The same goes for those who would like to return to fishing and other sports. One good fisherman and sportsman, Mr. Joe Al Boudetto can be seen most anytime up Jordan River, by himself, fishing. He gets his share, too! He is past the eighty mark!

Why don't something be done about people who own homes on the Coast, pay taxes, spend money here and yet have to pay $6.25 for a non-resident fresh water fishing license when local residents only pay $1.25 for the same privilege. Of course, these are state licenses. Let's not keep driving away people seeking pleasure among us rather than encouraging them to come to our state, especially for their recreation.

Fishermen are like fish. They have their pet places to go. For instance, Joe Glover loves the "Mighty Pearl" Joe Kern, August Raunet, out at the Keys etc.; Luke Waters, anywhere along the coast. John S., who lives in Louisiana, has been in the bay and out fishing. John Damboise and Henry Long, just out from.

The green at the Pine Creek Golf Club are shaping up well. won't be long now when they will be open to play. The front side has been closed.

The water level in the Highway bridge at the mouth of the river is low. It is especially to those who have never seen one!

SHADES OF YESTERYEAR—Time and weather did for this century old Mississippi road what construction equipment of the day could not. The deep cut is in a Mississippi hill section.

HIGHWAYS AND PROGRESS

Early Equipment No Match For Modern Highway Construction

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is Part Two of a four part series dealing with the history and development of the Mississippi State Highway Department and the state system of highways.)

PART TWO—Horses and Buggies to the Twenties

Take a ride down a modern, new highway. Note the wide shoulders the easy curves and long sight distances. Even though surrounding terrain may be rugged, the highway flows smoothly across the countryside.

Contrast this with an old gravel road, narrow, winding, following uphill and down the way nature laid out the hills and valleys.

Mississippi has plenty of both types — the modern road built by veteran highway engineers, contractors and giant machines which pay little heed to obstacles; and the gravel and dirt roads which grew out of ancient trails.

HORSE AND BUGGY ROADS

A century ago, highway engineering was a matter of finding the most practical route that a horse and buggy could travel — a ridge line very likely, with circuitous detours for obstacles. Mississippi's topography made it impractical to follow section lines and there was no thought of such modern-day terms as standards, traffic needs, programs, systems and other considerations.

The travel habits of people were different. Many spent a lifetime without venturing farther from home than the county seat.

Study Indicates Limitations On Pork Production

STATE COLLEGE, Miss.—If the South increases pork production at the expense of production in the Midwest, a very slight drop in Southern prices will result. If, however, the increase in the South is a net addition to total production in the United States, then noticeable price declines may be expected.

These are conclusions drawn by two Mississippi Agricultural Experiment Station economists, Dr. Thomas E. Tramel and L. Dow Welch after a study of the pork situation.

Many hog producers feel that technological advances are likely to cause production to shift from the Corn-Belt to the Mid-South. Others feel that states in the Mid-South will at least become self-sufficient in pork production. Research recently completed by the Mississippi Station indicates the following effects of such changes on the retail carcass value of Southern-produced pork:

If 10 percent of the production of leading Corn-Belt states were shifted to Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi, only minor change in retail carcass value would result. Were the latter 4 states to become self-sufficient in pork production by 1965, sharp price declines could be expected.

Should Mississippi double its 1958 production, with production elsewhere remaining at 1958 levels, retail carcass values in Mississippi would decline by 79 cents.

Steamboats still carried most of the freight. Inland, a few railroads were replacing the old ox-wagon supply trains.

THEN THE AUTOMOBILE

Road-building equipment at that time left much to be desired. Horse-drawn scrapers, shovels and other tools would have made little impact on a modern highway plan.

Introduction of the automobile in the early 1900's brought about a new interest in roads. Macadamized and other hard surface types began replacing the dirt, plank and charcoal. Stone, gravel, chert, slag, brick and combinations of these materials although unobtainable in some sections of the state, were used in increasing quantities.

During the first 16 years of the 20th century, the number of automobiles increased from 20 to 24,000, while the number of trucks increased from 10 in 1908 to 1,000 in 1916.

FIRST COMMISSION

Despite the growing number of automobiles, roads were still a local problem when the Mississippi Legislature met in 1916. The first act authorizing a state highway commission was passed that year, and a short time later, the United States Congress approved the first federal aid appropriation. These two developments broadened the scope of highway planning and construction, and paved the way for our present system of highways.

The original Federal Aid Act also set up the partnership between federal and state governments which has characterized road construction since then. The federal grants provided up to 50 per cent of the cost of rural roads, with appropriations divided among the states on the basis of area, population and post-road mileage.

INITIAL APPROPRIATION

The first state appropriation to the Mississippi State Highway Commission was $6,500 to cover operations for a two-year period. Initially, the duties of the Commission involved only the division of federal funds among the counties, and advising with the boards of supervisors on road matters.

A 1920 law broadened the scope of the Commission's work, and increased its membership from three to eight. During the same year, the Commission began work with the Board of Supervisors in planning a system of state highways.

The 1922 Legislature authorized the first gasoline tax which was a levy of one cent per gallon. The revenue was divided 40 per cent to the State Highway Fund and 60 per cent to the county where the monies were collected.

The year 1924 brought about the first steps in the direction of a statewide system when the constitution was amended to permit the legislature to designate highways and place them under the supervision of the Highway Commission.

By 1925, the state-maintained highway system had grown to 1,200 miles and the newly approved federal aid system totaled 3,000 miles.

Three years later, the highway program in Mississippi faced the threat of a setback. The federal government announced that the state was not with its requirements to qualify for federal aid and that no allotments would be made for June 30, 1928.

The Mississippi Governor, Theodore G. Bilbo, was called upon to take action to bring the state into compliance with the federal requirements.

21st Annual Boys Conservation School By Forestry Ass'n

The 21st Annual Boys Conservation School, sponsored by the Mississippi Forestry Association, will be held this year during the week of July 31 through August 4, at Roosevelt State Park near Morton. It was announced by Wayne Burrage of Louisville, State Chairman of the Boys Conservation School.

Boys are being selected from converge on the group camp at the state park to receive instruction in wildlife, forestry and soils along with ample helpings of recreational and other activities.

Boys are being selected from the 8th 9th and 10th grades and will receive instruction from professional and trained personnel from state and federal agencies and private industries.

"There has always been a great deal of interest shown by everyone concerned in the Boys Conservation School since its beginning in 1941," Burrage said, "and this year is no exception. We are expecting one of the biggest and best schools in every phase of activity in the history of the Boys Conservation School."

Boys are being selected by county committees made up of the County Agent, as chairman, Area Forester, Game Warden and Vocational Agriculture teacher on the basis of the boy's interest in at least one of the three phases of instruction backed by actual work and accomplishments in one of the three fields. A team of four boys from each county is being selected.

Burrage said two separate Boys Conservation Schools are held each year, one for Delta and part-Delta counties and this particular one for hill counties. The reason for holding two schools is the decided difference in conservation methods and conditions in the two sections of the state.

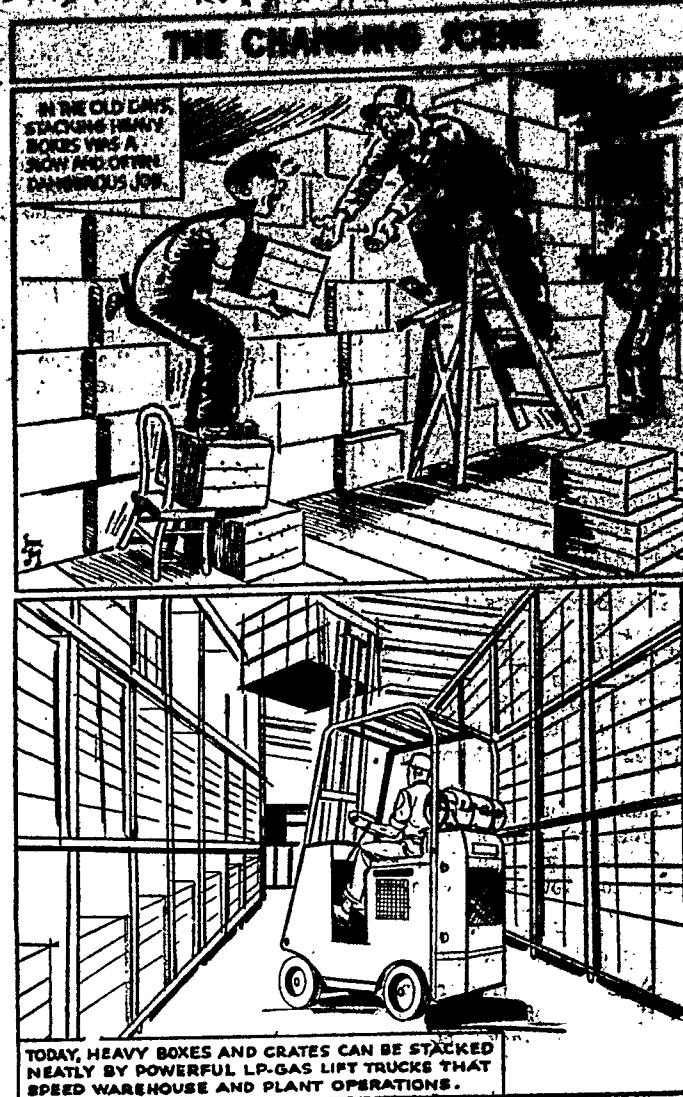

Burrage said that team and individual awards will be presented to winners on the last day of the school.

ENTERTAINS AT COCKTAIL PARTY

Dr. and Mrs. Wesley McFarland entertained a few members of the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club at a cocktail hour Saturday night prior to the Ship Wreck party.

per hundred-weight. Increasing Mississippi production to 5 times its 1958 level would depress retail carcass values by $3.00 per hundred-weight.

The complete report is published as Technical Bulletin 49, available on request from the Experiment Station at State College.

Mississippi's "Living Proof" Of Highway Safety Shows Effectiveness

Mississippi has "living proof" of the effectiveness of its highway safety enforcement-education program.

That's shown in the decrease in highway traffic fatalities thus far this year as compared with the same period in 1960.

"Records show that about 62 fewer people have been killed on our highways up to now than last year," President Otho Smith of the Mississippi Safety Council said. "The number of fatalities is around 280 against 322 for the same months last year."

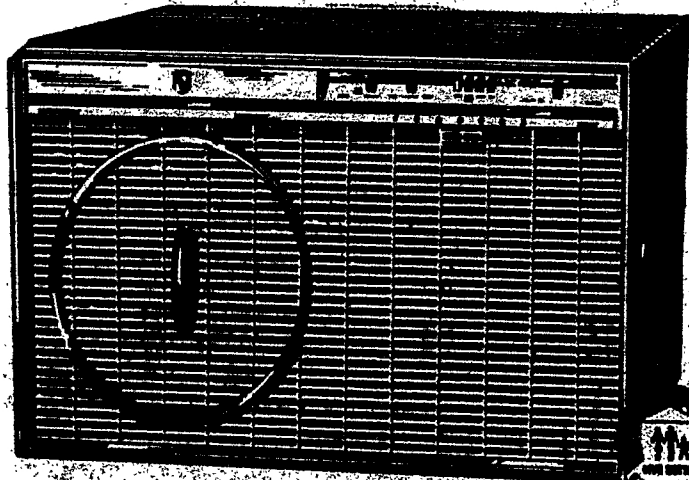

President Smith said three things enter into the reduction in traffic fatalities. He listed them

The record speaks well for the effectiveness of the overall highway safety effort of all concerned. President Smith said, "Especially, since it is in the face of more cars on the highways, more miles traveled, yet the same number of highway fatalities to handle the situation."

A far cry from the forty-niner with his pick or his pan

This man listens through earphones for the clatter of exploding atoms.

Otherwise, he must follow the tortuous path of the prospector. Uranium, like gold, is where you find it . . . high on a cliff . . . deep in a chasm . . . anywhere.

There are spiritual riches to be found in life—by those with the determination to seek them. But don't make the common mistake of assuming that one Sunday in Church should satisfy the search.

Spiritual riches come gradually with religious growth. As a family makes worship and religious study part of everyday living, the treasures of God begin to accumulate in the character and experience of that family.

You'll probably be disappointed if you merely give religion a try. But your earnestness will be rewarded when you make Christianity the foundation of your life.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth

for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values.

Without a strong Church, neither democracy

nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church.

They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

BEGIN NOW TO READY FIRST GRADERS BY FALL

Action should begin now to get next fall's first graders ready for school, said Dr. A. L. Gray, Executive Officer of the State Board of Health.

Too many parents put off this important responsibility until late summer when the offices of health departments, doctors and dentists are overflowing with school children and there's no time for leisurely examinations and consultations, much less for needed corrections, according to the State Health Officer.

Dr. Gray recommends that all parents use the 5-point check list for the beginner child prepared by Dr. N. C. Knight, long-time Medical Director of the Mississippi School Health Service and Health Education Director for the State Board of Health.

According to Dr. Knight, every child starting to school needs the following:

1. A birth certificate
2. A dental certificate
3. Record of medical and dental examination
4. Physical defects corrected
5. Immunizations completed for: Polio, Diphetheria, Tetanus and Smallpox.

Dr. Knight holds that only through a medical and dental examination can a parent know the health status of the child.

"A parent who enters a child in the first grade without knowing his health status is like the motorist who begins a long trip without a car check-up," said the school health specialist.

Maximum performance in school, said Dr. Knight, is what every parent desires for his child.

"But by failure to correct existing defects that a medical examination may uncover, many a parent unwittingly keeps his child from achieving his maximum potential in the school situation," Dr. Knight stated.

Immunizations, medical examinations and necessary corrective procedures are all within the reach of every pre-school and school-age child in Mississippi through private physicians and the services of the local health department, according to Dr.
Knight.

FOURTH OF JULY DEATH TOLL LOW IN MISSISSIPPI

Mississippians can count themselves fortunate after the Fourth of July weekend. The traffic death toll nationwide is expected to be the highest for any summer holiday on record. In our state, four accidents took five lives.

In evaluating the weekend, two factors deserve the credit for making Mississippi one of the safest states in the nation over the holiday. First, and foremost, were our drivers. They realized the danger and responded by being careful, courteous and considerate. They cooperated wholeheartedly with enforcement officers and thus reaped the benefits of a lower death rate. Enforcement agencies throughout the state, the Highway Safety Patrol, Sheriff's officers, police departments, etc. worked together closely and contributed markedly to the successful reduction of deaths
on our roads.

The second factor was the excellent cooperation offered by the news media of the state. A tremendous amount of information was published about the necessity for safe driving. Radio and TV stations gave wide exposure to safety messages day and night throughout the weekend. A debt of gratitude is due the new media for the excellent job they did and to them goes a large part of the credit for having made it a safe holiday weekend.

The American iron and steel industry had a record payroll of nearly $3.9 billion during 1960,
a year in which steel output ranked sixth highest.

Forestry Bank Set To Help Landowners

Mississippi's Forestry Bank—a new state agency created by the 1960 Legislature—was established to help landowners with funds for tree-planting and timberland improvement. This is the final column in a five-part series of questions and answers about the Forestry Bank.

Q. Who will do the work on the land?

A. In most instances vendors or employees of the Forestry Commission will do the necessary tree-planting and timber stand improvement work on the land.

Q. Can the landowner do the work himself?

A. Yes, the landowner may do some of the work himself, in certain instances. In such cases, work will be supervised by the Forestry Commission and it must conform to good forestry practices.

Q. Will the landowner be paid if he does the work himself?

A. Policies of the Forestry Development Board of Trustees permit the landowner to be paid for doing the work himself, in certain instances. However, when a landowner is paid for the work he does, that sum must be repaid, together with a service charge on the amount involved.

Q. If a landowner grows trees, can he sell them?

A. The Forestry Commission has the exclusive right to sell all timber during the period of the timber lease. All income from such sales will be applied against repayment of development costs and service charges until those costs are repaid in full. After those costs are repaid, all income from timber sales will then go to the landowner as his profit. Management of the timber will be handled by the landowner after the timber lease has expired.

Q. Will the Forestry Commission mark trees to be cut and sold?

A. Yes.

Q. Will the Forestry Commission plant trees and do timberland improvements?

A. Yes.

Q. What is the landowner's liability if the timber burns?

A. The landowner is expected to cooperate fully in preventing losses to his timber by fire. In instances where fire does occur, however, an insurance reserve fund established by the Forestry Bank will provide funds to help replant a timber tract.

Q. What is the record of forest fires in Mississippi?

A. The record is good. In the past few years forest fire loss in Mississippi has been less than 1%.

Q. What counties have state fire protection for timber?

A. All counties except Neshoba, Wilkinson, Bolivar, Sunflower, Tunica, Coahoma, Franklin, Quitman, Leake and Washington. It is expected that Leake and Washington will receive protection in the near future.

Q. Does the landowner get insurance against fire, wind, storm, insects and other hazards?

A. Insurance against these hazards of nature will be included in the reimbursement and will be handled through a reserve fund established by the Forestry Bank.

Q. Will the Forestry Commission fight fires on timber land under lease?

A. Yes.

Q. What about timber theft and trespass?

A. The landowner is expected to cooperate fully with the Forestry Commission in preventing timber theft and trespass, in addition to losses from fire, insects or disease. Instances of timber theft and trespass will be investigated and prosecuted under state laws already in force.

Q. Will the Forestry Bank or the Forestry Commission pay taxes on the timberland under lease?

A. No. Neither the Forestry Bank nor the Forestry Commission will assume the responsibility for payment of taxes on land in this program.

Q. Can a landowner be a tree farmer?

A. Yes. Mississippi already has more tree farms than any other state in the nation and everyone taking part in the Forestry Bank program will be encouraged to become a registered tree farmer.

THE PARENT TRAP AT LEGION THEATRE, STARTING THURSDAY, JULY 20TH

Hayley Mills, starring in Walt Disney's hilarious Technicolor feature, "The Parent Trap," is the top motion picture discovery of a quarter century, the noted Burbank producer believes.

"In my opinion," Disney says, "Hayley is the finest young talent to come along in at least 25 years."

Hollywood expressed its agreement with Disney by awarding the young star an Honorary Academy Award for her "Outstanding Juvenile Performance" in "Pollyanna," her first Disney feature.

Co-players in both "Pollyanna" and "The Parent Trap," the latter her first for Disney under a long-term contract, agreed she is strongly reminiscent of Mary Pickford, the first Pollyanna in movies.

For her first picture, an English feature called "Tiger Bay," Hayley won the coveted Berlin Festival's Silver Bear, and awards have been coming her way ever since.

"The Parent Trap" stars Maureen O'Hara, Brian Keith and Miss Mills and co-star Charlie Ruggles, Una Merkel, Leo G. Carroll and Joanna Barnes. David Swift directed from his own screenplay based on the German novel, "Das doppelte Lottchen," by Erich Kastner. Release is by Buena Vista.
